Parent Guide: 5 Practical Ways to Support Your Teen During School Transitions

Introduction

School transitions can be overwhelming for teens — and just as nerve-wracking for parents who want to help but aren't sure how. This guide offers five practical, therapist-recommended strategies you can use right away to help your teen navigate change with confidence and resilience.

1. Emotional Check-In Script

Teens often hide their struggles, so gentle, non-judgmental check-ins can make a big difference. Use these openers:

- “What’s been the hardest part of your week so far?”
 - “When did you feel proud of yourself this week?”
 - “If you could change one thing about school right now, what would it be?”
Remember: listen more than you speak, and resist the urge to immediately fix or advise.

2. Weekly Resilience-Building Family Activity

Pick one night a week for a family connection ritual:

- Share "one win and one challenge" from the week
 - Go for a 20-minute walk together (phones off!)
 - Cook or bake something as a team
- These simple activities reinforce a sense of safety and belonging.

3. Quick Mindfulness Exercise

Help your teen learn to calm their body and mind:

- STOP technique: Stop, Take a smooth deep breath, Observe your body(gentle body scan), Proceed—go back to what you were doing or were anxious about doing.
 - Box Breathing: Inhale for 4 seconds, hold for 4, exhale for 4, hold for 4. Repeat 4 times.
 - 5-4-3-2-1 Grounding: Name 5 things you see, 4 things you feel, 3 things you hear, 2 things you smell, 1 thing you taste.
Practice together when calm, so they're ready to use it when stressed. This is great to use in Nature, which we do each session at bedrocktherapies outdoor sessions.
 - RAIN: Recognize—how you are feeling internally, Allow the feelings to show up—try not to numb, Investigate—can you be curious towards what's happening internally? Nurture yourself, provide kindness towards the emotions and the body parts they are showing up in.

4. Supportive Phrases That Help

Instead of:

- "Just get over it."

Try:

- "That sounds really tough. I'm here for you."
- "That makes sense, can you tell me more about that?"

Instead of:

- "You're overreacting."

Try:

- “Your feelings are valid. Let’s work through this together.”
 - “It makes sense you feel this way, can you tell me where you're stuck?”

5. Resource List

Final Reminder

You don’t have to be a perfect parent to make a difference — just a present, caring one. Small, consistent actions build the foundation your teen needs to thrive.
